

Office of the President

May 16, 2017

To the Manhattan College community:

On Monday, May 15, the NLRB counted the votes cast in 2011 regarding a union for the adjunct faculty. Of the 105 ballots that were counted from that election, 59 were for the union and 46 were against unionization. More than 50 additional ballots were challenged by the College or by the NLRB and have not been counted. There was no final decision by the NLRB on Monday. Over the next several days, we will be reviewing the situation fully to determine next steps.

I encourage you to use this link to view the full record of our interactions with the union and the NLRB over the past six years: <https://inside.manhattan.edu/offices/human-resources/adjunct-unionization-effort.php>.

We will be in touch as soon as there is additional information to share.

In the meantime, thank you for your continuing dedication to Manhattan College.

Sincerely,

Brennan O'Donnell
